The waters around Hornby Island feature a rich variety of marine life. In any season, one can encounter giant pacific octopus, wolf eels, harbour seals, large ling cod and rock fish; colourful anemones and nudibranchs. In winter, Steller and California sea lions gather in the area to feed on schools of herring. Their underwater acrobatics are a treat to watch. Good visibility and gentle currents make the Hornby Islands area easy to dive. Drift dives, wall dives, deep dives, and sculpted sandstone reefs are all part of the underwater terrain.
